Plow, Chop, and Bed All in One Pass

New Cotton Plows

SAVE WITH THE ONE-PASS TILLAGE TOOL

Eliminate up to seven conventional tillage passes when you hitch up to the new Frontier Cotton Plow. Just one pass with our new cotton plow lets you plow, cut tap roots, completely bury residue, and build beds, so you save time, fuel, and topsoil while increasing organic matter and nutrient levels in the soil.

Each pass with the new Frontier cotton plow completes several critical functions. First, clearing blades remove vines and weeds from the top of the row. Then, a small moldboard opens a 12-inch furrow, while horizontal wing blades cut standing stalks six to 12 inches below ground level at the tap root. A finger-type stuffer wheel gathers and buries the cut stalks in the furrow, and a set of closing disks, or hipper/bedders, covers the stalks and builds a bed for the next crop.

Looking to do more with every pass? Then look to the new cotton plows from Frontier Equipment. For more information, stop by your local John Deere dealership, exclusive distributor of Frontier Equipment, or visit us online at www.BuyFrontier.com.

Make one pass with the Frontier cotton plow instead of up to seven passes with single-purpose tools, and you could save yourself $50 per acre in operator time, fuel expense, and equipment wear. Plus, you'll also reduce topsoil loss, field compaction, and dust emissions, all while improving soil quality, preserving soil moisture, and boosting yield potential. Check with your soil conservation office for possible tax credit.
