Alberta Golf Hole Judged Most Beautifully Brutal

JOHNSTON, Iowa – November 25, 2008 – The 192-yard, par 3, fourth hole at The Fairmont Banff Springs Golf Club, Banff, Alberta, has been selected as one of the winners of the John Deere Credit search for the 18 Most Beautifully Brutal Golf Holes™ in North America.

The Banff Springs hole was chosen from entries throughout the U.S. and Canada (excluding Quebec) by a panel of judges that includes Jeff Babineau, editor of Golfweek; Pat Roberts, publisher of Golfdom; Joe Passov, architecture editor for Golf magazine; and Gary Van Sickle, golf editor for Sports Illustrated. The judges rated each entry on the basis of the hole's beauty as well as its difficulty.

Rundle Mountain towering on the right and an elevated tee box not only make The Fairmont Banff Springs hole one of North America's most beautiful golf vistas, but they also create optical illusions that can trick even the savviest player. Swirling winds caused by the mountain and a 192-yard carry over water make the hole even more dastardly.

Passov describes the hole as "one of my favorite par 3s in golf."

"The fourth hole at The Fairmont Banff Springs Golf Club offers an outstanding example of how dedicated course owners, builders, architects and superintendents create and maintain holes that golfers talk about the entire year," says Steve Knutson, Director of golf leasing for John Deere Credit.

"John Deere Credit is proud to recognize these efforts and to provide golf courses throughout North America with equipment and lease products that help them keep courses beautiful and brutal," Knutson adds.
