Tucson National's 18th Judged Most Beautifully Brutal Golf Hole™

JOHNSTON, Iowa – November 25, 2008 – The 469-yard, par 4, eighteenth hole at Tucson National – Catalina, Tucson, Ariz., has been selected as a winner of the John Deere Credit search for the 18 Most Beautifully Brutal Golf Holes™ in North America.

The Tucson National hole was chosen from entries throughout the U.S. and Canada (excluding Quebec) by a panel of judges that includes Jeff Babineau, editor of Golfweek; Pat Roberts, publisher of Golfdom; Joe Passov, architecture editor for Golf magazine; and Gary Van Sickle, golf editor for Sports Illustrated. The judges rated each entry on the basis of the hole's beauty as well as its difficulty.

Nicknamed the Devil's Backbone, Tucson National Catalina Course's eighteenth hole was rated among the toughest five finishing holes on the PGA tour during the 30 years that the course hosted the Chrysler Classic. The hole requires a tee shot between two hazards to a narrow landing area that has a hump that hurtles shots toward the hazards. Passov calls it "a freaky brute from start to finish."

"Tucson National's finishing hole offers an outstanding example of how dedicated course owners, builders, architects and superintendents create and maintain holes that golfers talk about the entire year," says Steve Knutson, Director of golf leasing for John Deere Credit.

"John Deere Credit is proud to recognize these efforts and to provide golf courses throughout North America with equipment and lease products that help them keep courses beautiful and brutal," Knutson adds.
